

DESIGN FORUM

Hosted by Randolph Community College's interior design department

- You are cordially invited to attend an information forum regarding licensing and legislation. A speaker from NCIDQ Headquarters in Washington, D.C. will be explaining how the new rules regarding the NCIDQ exam will be affecting the designers of the Triad. A representative from ASID National Headquarters will be speaking on legislation in North Carolina. Then a representative from IDS will be speaking on their organization. Now more than ever we must all come together and be informed as to the rules, laws, and legislation regarding our state and how we will be conducting our interior design businesses in the future.
- This forum is open to all designers in the Triad so please pass this onto a friend or colleague.
- The event will be on Friday, September 5, 2008 at Randolph Community College's Design Center. Meet and greet begins at 10:00 am and the speaker will start at 10:30am. Light morning refreshments will be provided.
- Please RSVP to Tracy Marino at 336-633-0284 or email tmmarino@randolph.edu so that we may receive a head count.
- Remember interior designers are key participants in the total building and design process. Regulation of practicing interior designers provides protection of our services as well as the public's health, life safety and welfare. So please come and hear where the future of design for the Triad is headed.
